ASK FOR ESTIMATES ON MUCH BRICK WORK

THE BOARD OF LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS IS TAKING STEPS TO HAVE MUCH WORK STARTED EARLY NEXT SPRING.

WILL BRICK MANY NEEDS STREETS

Assessment Rolls Will Be Cast and Public Hearings Held This Winter—Plan Is Good One and It Is Hoped Will Result in Many Paved Streets.

The board of local improvements has instructed City Engineer Nesbit to prepare estimates on a great deal of street work. At yesterday's meeting of the board Mr. Nesbit was instructed to prepare estimates on the cost of paving Third street from Galena avenue west to Douglas avenue; Second street from Galena to Monro; First street from Ottawa to the hospital; River street from Hennepin to Ravine avenue; Crawford, Otawa, Hennepin and Peoria avenues from First street to River street, and North Galena avenue from Fellows street north to the city limits.

In addition the board asked for estimates on considerable macadam work, the most important of which is on College avenue from Second street south to Sixth, and on Sixth from College avenue to Depot avenue. The work was all contemplated by the board last winter and at that time it was hoped that it would all be accomplished by this time.

Get Court Work Completed.

However, it is the intention of the commissioners to go ahead with the preliminary work this summer, thus making it possible for the assessment rolls to be cast, the public hearings held and all court proceedings completed by spring, when the contracts could be let and work started at once.

"CASCARETS" SURELY STRAIGHTEN YOU OUT

No Headache, Biliousness, Upset Stomach, Lazy Liver or Constipated Bowels by Morning

Are you keeping your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway through these alimentary or drainage organs every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oil, or Purgative Wafers.

Stop having a bowel wash day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach remove the indigestible, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong to every household. Children just love to take them.

Let everybody turn out tomorrow evening. An old-time republican rally.

Will Lipp and George Greenough of Sterling were here yesterday.

W. F. Elgeman of Waterloo is in Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Keplinger of Mt. Morris attended the game today.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rosbrook have returned from a few days' visit in Chicago.

Carl Thomas, Guy Myers, Harry Ford and Rodney Gof of Sterling attended the baseball bazar last evening.

Tom Richards was here yesterday from Amboy.

Harry White, formerly of this city is now at Blessing, Tex., where he has land interests.

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS, TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Removes the Scum from the Tongue, Sweetens a Sour, Gassy, Bilious Stomach; Cleanses Your Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels Without Gripe or Nausea.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with effete waste matter not properly carried off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel washday.

That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, sour bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system thoroughly but gently—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are drugging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't be imposed upon.

Finally someone asked him if he would like to buy it. He answered: "Well I should say not; I've just spent ten cents for meat for the cat, and it wouldn't be a mouthful for a big brute like that." ## CHAPTER X.

Dorothy March Talks.

Matinee girls in the Forrest Theater differ from their sisters of other New York playhouses in that they are far more serious than anybody in the evening audiences. Caramels, marshmallows, chocolate creams are forbidden by the unwritten law of their cult. The utmost nourishment one of them can allow herself is a salted almond nibbled surreptitiously between decorous little outbursts of kid-gloved applause. It is not the sort of gathering in which one would expect to find the busiest sleuth of the headquarters staff, especially with a great diamond mystery on his hands. Yet, on one of those warm January afternoons that make the metropolis wonder if it is being metamorphosed into a winter resort, one of the most interested actors in the select little theater was Detective-Lieutenant Britz, of Manning's staff.

Britz found the somebody he sought when his gaze fell on a slim little figure in the trimmest of dove-colored gowns, sitting in the fifth row off the center aisle. Instantly his last pretense of attention to the play vanished. Keeping his eyes on the gray curves of the girl in the fifth row, he quitted his post at one side of the house and walked slowly to the main exit, whence he watched her until the curtain fell on the first act. Meanwhile, he scribbled on a card, slipped a liberal tip into the receptive hand of an usher, and indicated the object of his interest. When the curtain fell on the first act, the usher hurried down the aisle, and presented the card to the girl in gray.

"If Miss March," read the young woman, "will spare a few minutes to Britz, of Headquarters, she will confer a favor and serve her friend, Mrs. Missioner."

Dorothy gathered her wrap, glasses and program quickly and followed the usher to the back of the theater. The youth led her to the famous detective, whom, though she had heard of him through Doris Missioner, she beheld for the first time.

"You wished to see me?" inquired Dorothy. It was a banal question, and a flush tinged her cheeks as she realized its superfluousness could not escape the greatest detective in New York. But Britz seemed not to notice it, and the simple directness of his manner put the girl at her ease.

"I took the liberty, Miss March," he said pleasantly, "because I saw you across the orchestra, and I need a short course in social knowledge." His smile robbed the reply of flippancy.

"Fancy!" said Dorothy. She was so utterly at sea as to the detective's purpose she could think of nothing else to say save: "I fear you have sought a poor teacher."

"Well, I don't know now," Britz returned, looking at her with respectful admiration. "You see, you're a society girl, and I know nothing of society, and there's something I want to know—something I ought to know."

"If there's anything I can tell you, Mr. Britz, I'll be glad to do so," Dorothy volunteered. "Especially if it will help you to find Mrs. Missioner's diamonds."

"I'm not sure it will," said Britz. "It may, however, save me from seeking them in the wrong place. You seemed to enjoy the play, Miss March."

This shift of subjects was so abrupt that if Dorothy's breath had not already been coming in catches, she might have gasped. It was evident detectives were more original than society men. She wondered absently if the type was worth studying.

"Why, yes," her hesitating answer came. "I believe it's considered one of the best hits of the season. Very elevating, you know, and—well, different."

"Modern, Miss March?"

"It has two periods. The first deals with the life of today, the second harks back to the early Victorian period with, I understand, an abrupt return to the present."

She was chatting quite easily with the detective now. Had she been reared in Mulberry street instead of on Murray Hill, she could not have felt more natural.

"Now, this society subject—by the way, Miss March," Britz switched again, "is there as much difference between social life then and now?"

"Oh, a great deal, I should say." Her eyes twinkled. "Of course, I cannot speak with authority—from personal observation."

"I wouldn't ask you to tell me anything about Ward McAllister from personal observation, Miss March," said the sleuth. His gallantry on occasion was the wonder of the Central office.

Dorothy looked alarmed. Could it be great detectives wasted time on compliments, too? But a side glance at the detective's serious expression reassured her. It was manifest even to a debutante he had no idea of making an impression along that line. She laughed frankly and looked at him again in the friendliest way.

"I know you don't want to ask me about anything so recent as the Spanish war," she said, "now, do you?"

"Candidly, I don't," he rejoined. "To tell you the plain truth, I don't know exactly what I wish to ask you now how to ask it, but I have an idea you can help me, and I am sure you will for Mrs. Missioner's sake."

"And Miss Holcomb's?" asked the girl eagerly. "She, too, you know, is a dear friend of mine."

"And Miss Holcomb's," answered the headquarters man warmly. "Let me say, too, my dear young lady, as one old enough to be your—your—"

"Don't say my brother, Mr. Britz," interposed Dorothy mischievously. "I—I—well, I don't really see how I can be a sister to anybody else." She felt impelled to treat this strangely natural man naturally—she, who despite her inexperience, could freeze presumption with a glance, felt that way. It was a tribute to his adaptability.

Britz laughed. "Miss March," he said with more heartiness in his tone than had colored it in many a day, "if I were not so busy it would be a delight to be an elder brother to you. But I guess you're not interested in my impulses, and we were talking of the play."

"Oh, yes, the play's the thing," Dorothy countered with keen relish of the situation. If subtlety was his intention, she would show him what a woman—Dorothy was all of nineteen—a woman could do. "I never would have supposed," she added, allowing herself full measure of mischief, "that a famous detective could be a matinee man."

Britz winced. His ready good nature parried her shafts, however, and it was with the same slow smile that he replied:

"Does the author reconcile the manners of the two periods, or, is the piece one of those problem plays that leave everything to the audience? You see, Miss March," he went on, "Mulberry street gets to Broadway occasionally."

"I don't know, Mr. Britz," she tried to recall the advance notice of the production. "This is the first time I've seen it. I dare say the playwright has bridged the gap somehow."

"It's a wide gap to bridge," observed the detective thoughtfully. "From reading nineteenth century novels, I should say it would be hard for the writer to hold interest with such a groundwork for his plot. Things were so different 50 years ago."

"Exactly what my grandfather says," Dorothy retorted, fun flashing in that mischievous face. "But we'll know soon how the author has succeeded," she added. "The orchestra is hearing the end of this selection."

"Even their amusements were different," mused Britz. "Instead of golf, tennis, autoing, yachting, they had archery, croquet, sketching and square dances—I don't suppose anybody in society sketches nowadays, Miss March?"

"I'd hardly say that," she replied. "There are a few talented men—"

"And many women—"

"Oh, almost all women are more or less artistic," said Dorothy with conviction. "But one must not be unjust to the men on that account."

"Well, Miss March," and his smile from a younger man would have been called caressing, "we've started with discussion of the play, and we touched on authorship, the founder of the Four Hundred, the war with Spain and a dozen other subjects. Funny how chatter zigzags, isn't it? I was about to say that from all I understand, the society men of today are not as accomplished, even if they are talented, as the beaux of good Queen Victoria's girlhood. Come now, I'd be willing to bet a box of bonbons you don't know half a dozen men who can draw anything except checks."

"Oh, yes, I do!" she cried gayly. Then, meditatively, "Half a dozen, you say? Do you know, Mr. Britz, I think you win."

"You don't know as many as six?" Britz inquired, as if the fate of empires hung on his winning the wager that as yet was only a hypothesis.

"It's humiliating, isn't it?" she said naively. "But I don't. There are two or three, though—Teddy Lorimer and Mr. Griswold, and that queer little Frenchman, Anatole—Anatole—oh, you know who I mean?"

"Anatole Daubigny?"

"Yes—he draws the funniest, dearest little dogs."

"And his monkeys, Miss March. Don't forget his monkeys."

"Aren't they simply—simply ravishing?" the girl returned. "And have you seen his newest satire on the Newport set—a lot of apes and baboons and chimpanzees in evening dress sitting at the table with several men and women? 'A Family Reunion,' he calls it."

"Delightful!" said Britz with enthusiasm equaling hers. "I perceive we enjoy a good many things in common, Miss March."

She smiled. It was not every matinee girl who could interest a man who solved world-famous mysteries.

"Isn't it strange!" she said. Then the training of years recalled her to a sense of what she was doing. "I fear we've been very unconventional, Mr. Britz," she said as primly as her prettiness permitted. "But I've enjoyed our little chat very much."

"Which means I must be going," said Britz promptly. "If I'm not to spoil your enjoyment of the mid-Victorian scene. The orchestra has finished speaking its little piece."

"Yes, there goes the curtain," agreed Dorothy, rising hastily. "So glad to have met you, Mr. Britz. I hope I've been of some assistance about dear Mrs. Missioner's jewels. Good-afternoon."

"But, Mr. Britz," she cried, "there was something you wished to ask me—something that was to help you find the diamonds?"

"Some other time, Miss March, thank you," said Britz, smiling. "I won't detain you now. Perhaps we'll meet at another matinee soon, with a longer intermission between the acts. Delighted to have made your acquaintance, Miss March. I know you're in a hurry to get back to your seat. Forrest audiences don't like to be disturbed, you know. Good-afternoon, Miss March, and—thank you—so much!"

He had cause to thank her, he believed. For, in her girlish talk, she had given him the first Missioner clue of the week—or, rather, she had extended for him a thread of the mystery that had occupied much of his thoughts from the moment when he received Logan's cable saying the paste jewels were made from sketches. For days, he had sought to learn who among Mrs. Missioner's intimates was artist enough to make such delicate draughts of the diamonds as would be required by an artist for the manufacture of imitations. With that object, he had ascertained Dorothy's intention to go to the matinee in the Forrest and had gone to the theater to meet her under conditions not likely to interfere with such gentle questioning of her as he meant to do. His veiled interrogation of the society girl had brought forth the fact that Curtis Griswold could sketch—that the clubman was sufficiently master of his pencil to have his skill pretty generally known among his acquaintances. Lorimer and Daubigny, the other society artists she had mentioned, were not, he knew, in Mrs. Missioner's circle.

It was fortunate for Lieutenant Britz, as well as for Elinor Holcomb and Doctor Fitch, and everybody whose hopes hinged on the detective's success in solving the great Missioner diamond mystery, that long custom made him thread the traffic of the city's throbbing artery automatically, for so deeply did the sleuth ponder the possibilities of his newest information that he had several close escapes from taxicabs, private automobiles and trolley cars as he crossed Broadway and bent his steps toward Fifth avenue. The case had cleared a little, but his course was not much plainer than it had been when he dropped into the theater in quest of further knowledge.

"It won't do to call Miss March as a witness," he mused, walking north in the carriage-crowded avenue, with that briskness characteristic of him when his brain was most active. "She can't absolutely prove anything." It was necessary to obtain tangible evidence of Griswold's ability as a draughtsman. How to do so without alarming the clubman was the present problem.

Britz by no means was prepared to suspect Griswold of the robbery. He realized thoroughly that Dorothy's information was all he had to indicate Griswold any more than Sands, or two or three others. He did not even know whether Miss Holcomb could draw, and it was no part of his purpose to distress the imprisoned girl with questions betraying the smallest belief in the accusation against her. No; Britz always honest with himself, could not say he suspected Griswold. His method was the opposite of Donnelly's and Carson's. Instead of suspecting everybody, as they invariably did in cases at all mysterious, he would not attach suspicion to anyone without satisfactory proof. That was the secret of his success. He was more than a detective; he was prosecutor, judge, jury and counsel to the defense. It accounted for the fact that he rarely made a mistaken arrest, and that when he caused man or woman to be placed in the prisoner's dock, a conviction almost always followed.

"Griswold, Sands, All, Blodgett—"

The names presented themselves to the sleuth's mind in that order as he hastened along with no particular place as an objective—merely walking to stimulate his mental process. It always brightened Britz to pass the panorama of fashion in Fifth avenue. It was with an almost fatherly feeling he glanced at the rich, the debonaire, the gay sauntering along the sidewalks or rolling in automobiles and carriages up and down the asphalt.

The safety of their wealth, sometimes of their very lives, depended on the vigilance, courage and efficiency of himself, and of the few men like him on the police force of New York. So far as the rank and file of the department were concerned, those care-free sons and daughters of opportunity might be at the mercy of the ablest birds of prey in the human flock. It was because Britz and his comrades worked and watched and waited so patiently, so devotedly, so ceaselessly, that fashion and finance, coquetry and commerce, could bask in the sunshine of metropolitan prosperity.

A dark-blue limousine standing at the corner of Forty-fourth street caught his attention. For a moment he studied it as he slackened his pace. Then he stopped short, retraced his steps, crossed to the east side of the avenue, and, through the windows of a waiting cab, trained his gaze on

"I Won't Detain You Now."

Sherry's fashionable restaurant in front of which the costly automobile stood. Dimly, through the filmy lace curtains, he saw the figures of those lingering over afternoon tea, with a few early diners. He could not distinguish their faces, but something in the bearing of a woman at the first window held his glance. Then a waiter, moving silently about the table, chanced to part the curtains with his elbow, and in the momentary gap between the folds of film Britz saw the blonde beauty of Mrs. Missioner, and the clear-cut features of Curtis Griswold.

Britz settled himself to wait. The cabman, whose vehicle he was using as a lookout, looked at him inquiringly, but the detective fished out of his pocket a fat cigar with a scarlet-and-gold band, and in a moment he and the cabby were chatting amiably. The headquarters man had not long to wait. Before the cabman had gone far into discussion of the current political crisis, the door of the restaurant across the street was swung open by a boy in many buttons, and Mrs. Missioner appeared on the threshold. She was followed closely by Griswold and, after a moment's pause to gladden the heart of the much-buttoned youth by a man the watching detective was somewhat surprised to see—Bruxton Sands.

"Home," said Mrs. Missioner to her chauffeur. Britz could not hear the word, but he read it from her lips. He saw the widow step into her limousine, saw Sands and Griswold follow, saw the chauffeur throw his clutch, saw the big car glide swiftly south to wheel for a northward trip along the avenue. Before the automobile reached a turning point, the detective sprang into the cab, whispered an address to the driver, and added in a low tone:

"Double your fare for speed."

The cabman lashed his horse and, knowing his craft, threaded his way through the traffic so quickly that in a short time he was several blocks ahead of the limousine. All the way up the avenue the race continued, Britz well in the lead. At the Fifty-fifth street entrance, the automobile swung into the park, but the cabman urged his horse straight up Fifth avenue, and so great was the gain made by the short cut that a few blocks further north he dropped his fare in front of a mansion of imposing ugliness, touched his hat in acknowledgment of a generous fee, and was bowling eastward, halfway to Madison avenue, when the Missioner car reappeared from the park's Seventy-second street gate.

"You at least can stop for a minute of gossip," said Mrs. Missioner over her shoulder as she preceded Sands and Griswold into her library. "Finance and club affairs can wait a little while, and—oh!"

She stopped in the act of throwing off her furs, and stood gazing at the middle of the room. There, absorbed in his task, at ease in a big chair before the crackling grate, sat Detective-Lieutenant Britz. Pad in one hand, pencil in the other, he was sketching busily.

Mrs. Missioner extended a hand behind her to silence her companions. She turned her head with a smile almost as mischievous as Dorothy could flash.

THE END OF A FALSEHOOD.

Gov. Hadley of Missouri, who had charge of Roosevelt's 72 contests on the floor of the republican national convention—after Roosevelt had abandoned 164 contests which were admitted without the slightest shadow of a foundation—is squarely supporting President Taft. He says that the republican party has done nothing to mar its splendid record of decency and honesty.

Gov. Denen of Illinois materially aided Roosevelt's cause in the pre-convention campaign and prepared a resolution at the Chicago convention in the interest of the Roosevelt candidates, but he is now openly supporting President Taft. He declares that Roosevelt confessed to him that there were only 34 delegates whose names had possible merit and that even regarding these honest men might have a difference of opinion. Gov. Roosevelt, with characteristic misapprehension, denounces Gov. Denen as a falsifier and a crook. The people of Illinois know whom to love.

The testimony and attitude of these men, former supporters of the now Third Party and Third Term candidate, will put a quietus upon the false and malicious accusations of Col. Roosevelt concerning so-called stolen delegates. There never was any foundation for the charge, but gradually and surely the truth is becoming known.

THE ONLY SAFETY.

From St. George Island—
If we are to come out of the present riot of noise and braggadocio and half-digested theories of national government with safety and credit, we must keep the Taft sort of man in control.

What Does a Change Mean For YOU?

With our abundant crops and prosperity in all lines of business in the country, our farmers, our laborers, and our business men are going to think twice before voting for a change in the republican management of our national affairs. The following wise words of Chairman Hilles, of the national republican committee, are worth pondering over by the voter:

Two groups of zealous politicians are crying to the country for a change in our national administration.

They want to take charge of the nation. They want to administer public affairs.

And they promise wildly, eagerly, what they will do in return—if only they are granted control.

From Maine to California, their words fill the air.

And have you, the workers and taxpayers, whose affairs these gentlemen would control, stopped to analyze their proffers and promises?

You should. To the politicians themselves these proffers and promises are of no special importance. They have nothing to lose. They have everything to gain. Even if they lose, they win; for the contest will keep them in the limelight.

But for you, the workers and taxpayers, this contest is serious business, and you should weigh the consequences with a serious mind. Don't take mere words. Seek facts.

Out of this whirlwind of language which the "spellbinders" send beating about your ears, what is it that stands out, first and all the time?

"We want a change in Washington."

A change for what? To what?

The present administration, after nearly four years' hard work, has finally succeeded in restoring the country's business to a prosperous basis.

The mills are running full time. Mines are operating all their shifts. Factories are working to capacity. Commerce is thriving. The country is free of labor troubles and financial troubles.

The working man is steadily gaining better wages. The farmer is growing steadily more prosperous. The market for farm products has never been so broad and generous.

The railroads report the heaviest freight and passenger traffic in their existence. Shipping is everywhere active. Public works on a great scale are everywhere under way. Trade is moving smoothly, in ever-increasing volume. The savings banks are overflowing with money.

The United States is on the threshold of the greatest boom in its history. Within six months, under present conditions, we will dwarf the great period that followed the Spanish War.

And our prosperity will be here to stay, for we are on sounder ground than we were in '98.

The trust problem has been settled—and settled right. "Big Business" has been put in its proper place, and this without halting industry or disorganizing affairs. The currency question is understood as it never has been, and will be solved along sound lines as soon as the heat of partisan political controversy dies down. The tariff is gradually being placed on a business basis, and soon will be out of politics, as it should.

Everything is shaping to give the American people a long, unbroken, unparalleled period of peace and plenty.

And at this time of all others, along come these political gentlemen shouting for a change.

Do you want to change? Do you want to check prosperity just as you are about to pluck its choicest fruits?

Would you, the workers who must pay, commit the mad folly of taking your government out of tried and proven hands and turning it over to the self-seekers who are clamoring for its control?

When President Taft took over the government the country was prostrate. Industry was paralyzed. Business was chaotic, uncertain, suspicious. Millions were out of employment. Investors, wherever possible, had withdrawn their capital. Enterprise was dead.

All this was the result of the panic of 1907, the "talking panic." The "Rich Man's" Panic, it was called. But do you remember any poor man who was not hurt?

It took the Taft administration over three years to repair the damage of this panic. It required infinite patience, skillful management at home and abroad, unflinching enterprise, good judgment and vast prudence to bring the country out of that black pit.

And now that the pit is covered, and the country is basking once more in the level sunshine of prosperity, do you want to take a chance on being thrown back? Do you want to take a chance on being talked into another and a needless panic?

The question is not to be settled by talk, no matter how smart. The huzzahs of the hustings may make sweet music, but in the background of the future you may hear the mutterings of a people unemployed.

Your family stands with you at the dividing line, which has happiness and prosperity on one side and unhappiness and even want on the other.

If you are a tramp, without kindred and without responsibility, by all means follow the adventurers. But if you own a stake in the country, if you have kith or kin dependent on the job you hold, weigh carefully the words and deeds of those who would lead you in a mad gallop to the precipice of experimental government.

Remember, a change at Washington would mean everything for them. But what would it mean for you?

Would Mr. Taft's defeat help you?

Would the theories, untried and unproven, on which the politicians are seeking to ride into office, benefit your wife and family?

Brush aside all the fine language of the orators long enough to dig out answers to these questions. You will then have a reasonably safe guide on election day, for, like true charity, true politics begins at home. The intelligent man votes for that which is best for himself and those dependent on him, and not for that which is best only for the other fellow. He is not misled by the shadow of the bone in the water.

The American people, for the first time in years, have the bone of prosperity firmly between their teeth. Are they prepared, like the dog in the fable, to drop it, to chase elusive shadows?

TAFT'S FIGHT IS YOUR FIGHT

President Taft is leading the republican party in a gallant fight to save the protective system to the country and to maintain popular representative government under the Constitution.

President Taft's fight is the fight of every republican. Under the banner of the republican party this country has prospered for over 50 years, save only during the four years when the democrats were in control of the government. It would mean the ruin of business to suddenly change from the protective system to the free trade laws which the democrats, in accordance with the declaration of their platform, would promptly enact. With manufactured articles and cereals upon the free list as proposed in the tariff bills passed by the democratic house and courageously vetoed by President Taft, many factories will be closed. Not only would there be an army of idle workmen, thus destroying the home market for the farmer, but the latter would also be forced to contend with the influx of foreign grain admitted duty free. Manufacturers would suffer, but the greatest injury would fall upon the farmer, who has not always capital to tide over hard times.

The fight which President Taft is making is more than a fight for the republican party. It concerns every American citizen without regard to political affiliations. Upon the outcome of the contest depends the preservation of our institutions and of national prosperity.

MRS. ALICE DALEY
DIED IN CHICAGO

Deceased Had Been Dixon Resident For Several Years Until Taken to City for Treatment.

Alice Daley, wife of the late Jas. Daley, passed away Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Della Granger, 7005 "roop" St., Chicago. The deceased had been a resident of Dixon for a number of years. Her husband preceded her in death some five years ago.

The deceased had been ill since last April. She spent two months in the Dixon hospital and then was taken to Chicago, to the home of her sister.

She leaves three brothers and three sisters: Mrs. Brannon, Joliet; Mrs. Hayward, Des Moines, Iowa; Mrs. Granger, Chicago; John, Edward and Will Ingoldsby, all of Chicago.

The funeral was held at 9 a. m. yesterday at St. Brandon's church, Chicago, and burial was at Mt. Olivet.

THE MEAT OF THE NUTS THAT WISE MEN CRACK—WHEN?

When a man is sick does he call in three or four doctors and invite quotations on what each will charge or cure him? And does he further demand that they charge so much per cubic inch for the liquid loaves prescribed?

When an architect is called on to design a palatial residence for a printer is he expected to charge by the number of square feet in the building?

When a man buys rugs for his house or office does he call the carpet man up and ask his rate per square foot for rugs, regardless of whether they are the Pluto grade or the common or garden variety?

When—Oh, what's the use! Nobody is ever expected to sell a product requiring brains and skill by superficial measurements or the square inch without regard to quality, except printers.—John F. Tobin in The American Printer.

BIG AND COMMENDABLE THINGS

From the Easton, Pa., Press.

Hundreds of people have been misled by gross misrepresentations to which Taft has been subjected by political enemies. They seem to have become imbued with the idea that Taft has done little or nothing in the four years he has been president which is of value to the public. That is a wholly erroneous impression. He has done many big and commendable things.

Few men can really aim accurately with a hammer—they generally get it on the thumb sooner or later.—Printers' Ink.

TOO MUCH JACK JOHNSON.

Jack Johnson, the negro champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, has been having some rather strenuous and unpleasant experiences the past few days in his efforts to keep out of the way of those who are at last disgusted with his miserable conduct. Had Johnson lived in any southern city his nimble legs would have had all they could do to keep the neck of their owner from getting inside the noose of Judge Lynch's rope.

Johnson has had the admiration of both the white and black races because of his prowess as a prize-fighter. The game, however, has netted him a big income and has given him a bad case of swell-head. He has used his pugilistic fame for personal gain from other sources. He astonished the world a couple of years ago by marrying a well known and supposedly respectable white woman. Soon after he opened the Cafe Champion, on the south side in Chicago, and if all reports are true some of the orgies carried on in that hole by his admirers, black and white, made the place a veritable cesspool of iniquity. At any rate Johnson's white wife tired of being queen of her black man's palace and ended her troubles by suicide. Nervousness and temporary insanity were given as the cause, but it is hinted that her husband had not treated her kindly.

The latest charge against the black champion is that he has traduced a nineteen-year-old white girl. He now puts up the defense that he wants to marry her. If state authorities in Chicago can prove what they believe to be true, the black man will be liable to a fine of $10,000 and ten years in prison. And many think he ought to get both. He is charged with bringing pretty Lucile Cameron to Chicago from her Wisconsin home for illicit purposes, and interstate traffic with women is a pretty serious offense. The part of the affair that is both disgusting and pitiful is that the little white girl, who has been kept in jail pending the investigation, has been crying her eyes out for her big black sweetheart, and that she refuses to give any incriminating testimony against him.

The negro says he has a right to marry anyone he pleases, black or white and makes the boast that "the best white women in Chicago ride with me in my car." This statement has raised a storm of indignation among club women of Chicago, and among the men also, and Johnson's neck is none too safe until the feeling dies down.

Chicago club women threaten to demand Johnson's banishment from the city, fearing that should he go unpunished it will embolden others of his race.

Of course Johnson is an American citizen, and he should get his rights. A fair trial should be given him, and if he is found guilty he should get the limit. The white race is disgusted with the negro's private life and the pugilist's shining popularity, as he terms it, with white women, has not made him any too popular with his own race.

Johnson is a discredit to his race, and he is a menace to them, for his actions intensify race prejudice. The evening

HAVE YOU THOUGHT OF THIS?

If Taft republicans vote for Wilson with the idea of eliminating Roosevelt they will only increase the size of Wilson's vote and help make Roosevelt second in the race. This would leave him in virtual possession of the republican party, which is the end he is striving for. The most effective way to prevent this is for republicans to stick to their party and vote for Taft. If by so doing they do not succeed in electing him, they will at least insure Mr. Roosevelt third place and preserve the republican party for future years of usefulness.

—Springfield Union.

Dr. Piper.

Dr. R. S. Piper of Chicago was here again Monday, Oct. 25, filling his regular monthly professional engagement. There has not been at any time a specialist who has visited Dixon who has been so entirely in harmony with the people as has Dr. Piper. For almost two years he has made regular visits to this city and among his numerous patients all have naught but words of praise for him.

Dramatic Notes

OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT.

The heavy advance sale of seats points to capacity business tonight at the opera house when the public will view for the first time in this city, The Common Law, a dramatization of Robert W. Chambers' celebrated novel of that name. The production which, scenically and artistically is one of the finest made, has been done by A. H. Woods, and has caused the greatest interest wherever it has been seen and the consensus of opinion is that from the standpoint of absorbing interest and gripping fascination, the play is superior to the novel. Mr. Chambers has written powerfully and his story has reached the eyes of millions of people, but the big dramatic situations he has indicated in his book must be seen upon the stage to be appreciated.

COMMON LAW IS A WONDERFUL PLAY

The Common Law, the play to be produced for the first time in Dixon at the opera house this evening, is one of the most wonderful plays to be seen here this winter.

It is a queer, odd sort of a play. You probably have never seen one like it before. Those who have read the story is written by Robert W. Chambers in the Cosmopolitan will let nothing prevent your being at the opera house tonight. Those of you who have not read the story should let nothing prevent your presence, for if you do you will miss a wonderful play. The company is an especially good one, too. It is sent out by A. H. Woods & Co. and it was only by luck and in order to break a long jump that Dixon was let in on the schedule. They played in Rockford last night and from there they go to Burlington, Ia., and then to Kansas City. The company carries four loads of scenery.

MADAME SHERRY

HERE NEXT WEEK

It is good news to Dixon theatre goers to hear that Madame Sherry, probably the most popular musical comedy in America, will be here next week. Madame Sherry will be seen at the Dixon opera house next Tuesday night. The company is from Woods, Frazee & Ledger, and that means that it will be top-notch.

Attorney General Stead will be the speaker at the big republican meeting at the Armory tomorrow evening.

DIAMOND PIN GIVEN WARD MILLER BY FANS

STATES ATTORNEY EDWARDS MADE PRESENTATION SPEECH TODAY.

Ward Miller, Dixon's distinguished member of the Chicago Cubs was the victim of a very happy surprise when he stepped to bat in the first half of the first inning of today's game between Dixon and the Cubs, for before he had an opportunity to size up any of Alderman Lange's spitlers, States Attorney Edwards stepped up to the plate with the air of a man about to address a jury.

He stopped Mr. Miller's preparations to knock the cover off the ball and in a very short talk, in which, however, he amply covered the regard and appreciation in which Dixon fans hold Ward's success on the diamond, he presented the fast centerfielder of the Cubs with a handsome diamond pin, the present of a number of fans of the city who contributed to the good cause this morning. Needless to say the speech and presentation were greeted with tumultuous applause on the part of the spectators.

Hot Water

in Unlimited Quantities at the turn of the Faucet

The only economical way to heat water is to heat it as it flows and the only convenient way is to turn the faucet without any preliminaries.

This AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER provides this economy and convenience.

With the Heater in the cellar, if you want a tubful for the bath, or several for washing, or a cupful for shaving, or any quantity for any purpose arising in the house, at any hour of the day or night, turn the hot water faucet in any room and you will get it. Leave the faucet open as long as you need hot water. The beauty of it is no more water will be heated than is actually used.

We'll tell you more about it at our Display Rooms.

THE SIMPLICITY OF IT.
This water heater accomplishes its work without any attention. It's merely a copper coil, a gas burner and two valves to govern the gas supply. When the water is turned on at any hot water faucet the pressure valve opens. This turns on the gas, which is lighted by a tiny pilot light. The copper coil through which the water passes is directly over the flame and by the time the water has passed through the coil it is steaming hot. As long as the gas is burning the coil grows hotter and hotter, if the flow of water is so slow as to permit it, so when a certain temperature is reached, an automatic temperature regulator closes down another valve and turns down the gas.

When the faucet is turned out by the pressure valve.

WARD MILLER FINED $50 BY MURPHY

MEANINGLESS AND JOKING REMARK OF DIXON PLAYER GETS TO BOSS' EARS.

The Chicago Record Herald of today has the following which is of especial interest here inasmuch as it concerns Ward Miller of this city:

The baseball rattle hummed with other things yesterday that showed cause for the dissatisfaction existing among members of the west side team. Pitcher Reulbach and Outfielder Miller are mentioned as victims of Murphy's acts, the reason for which appear remote to the players attached. Miller was fined $50 for something he was supposed to have uttered regarding Murphy, while Reulbach was assessed $100, but "Big Ed" is not certain in regard to the offense.

On Oct. 13 when the west side park held the biggest crowd in its history, the batting cage that is rolled behind the plate for practice was destroyed by spectators. After the game it was found in the vicinity of the club house, a mass of junk. Miller saw the remnants and remarked that "Murphy will be crazy when he sees that." A stool-pigeon must have informed the Cub boss as Miller received his city series envelope yesterday and was surprised by a note on which his remark was typewritten in red letters. "That will cost you $50," was added. After a conference with Murphy the money was refunded to Miller.

Reulbach was fined the $100 because, as Murphy notified him, he disgraced his Cub uniform during the city series. The only thing Reulbach was known to have uttered was during the city series for GCM was during a game on the south side. Oil was being burned on the diamond Oct. 8 to dry it. As the flames were roaring Reulbach jokingly remarked that enough oil was being wasted to run his auto all winter. It is said one of the players carried this to Murphy, and he dealt out the fine.

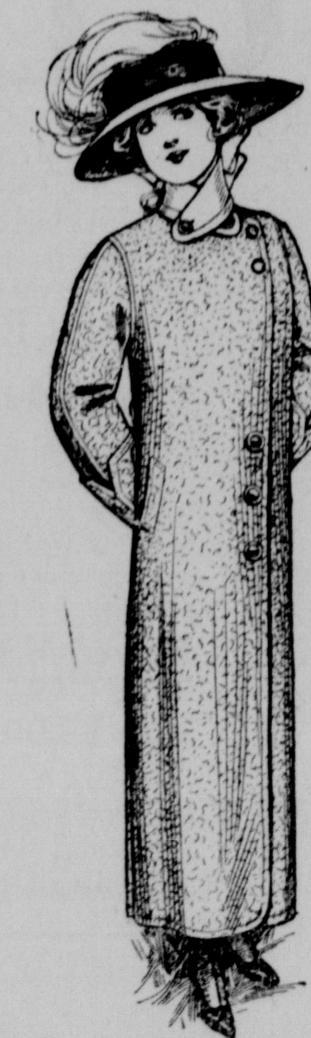

Attorney General Stead will be the speaker at the big republican meeting at the Armory tomorrow evening.

J. W. Payne of Amboy was a visitor in Dixon today.

BECKER TRIAL AT END

Defense Concludes Evidence Without Accused Testifying.

Chauffeur of Murder Car Swore That Neither of the Alleged Gunmen Were Present at Murder.

New York, Oct. 23.—The evidence
by which Police Lieut. Charles Becker hopes to refute the charge that he instigates the assassination of Herman Rosenthal was concluded before Justice John W. Goff here. The defense closed without having placed the accused officer on the witness stand, and apparently added strength to the case through the testimony of the last few witnesses called.

William Shapiro, chauffeur of the murder car, offered in rebuttal by the district attorney, furnished a startling climax to the proceedings by swearing that neither Rose, Webber, Vallon nor Schepps was present when Rosenthal was shot in front of the Metropole hotel on the night of July 16.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow morning. Justice Goff announced, after a consultation with the lawyers on both sides, that Attorney John F. McIntyre would be given four hours for his summing up address. District Attorney Moss will make the closing argument for the people, and has been allotted four hours. The jury will be given a night's rest before hearing the charge from the court which will guide them in reaching a verdict.

SARAH BERNHARDT IS 68

Famous French Actress Celebrates Birthday in London.

London, Oct. 23.—This is Sarah Bernhardt's birthday, and as she is spending it in London, the British nation took occasion to help her celebrate it. The great actress gave out a statement correcting an erroneous idea as to her age.

"Under ordinary circumstances," she said, "and had I been twenty years younger, the question of my age would not have troubled me in the slightest degree. As it is, however, Father Time and I have been old friends for so long that I feel I can afford to deny him the gratuitous gift of one year of my life; and therefore I take leave to state that today is my sixty-eighth birthday—not my sixty-ninth."

ROUGH FUND IS GROWING

Subscriptions to Erect Memorial to Gary Newsboy Hero Pouring In.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 23.—Subscriptions continued to pour in to the memorial fund for the Rough monument here, scores of letters being received by Secretary A. B. Kellar of the Gary State Bank. Most of the donations so far have been small, and Mr. Kellar stated that the total amount so far received would approximate $300.
There was joy at the Smith home in West Gary. For the first time since the accident last September Miss Smith walked to her place at the dinner table.

FIVE MEN SLAY GIRL

DELIBERATELY SHOOT HER TO DEATH ON LONELY ROAD.

Three Are Captured—Motive for Kill- ing Mystery—Victim May Have Been Dangerous Witness.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 23.—Taken by five men in an automobile to a lonely point on the main road between Bridgeport and Stratford, Conn., Rose White, a young and handsome woman, was deliberately shot to death by the roadside last night.

The victim, when found with five bullet wounds in her body, was clad in the costly attire and her valuable jewels had not been taken. The motive for the killing is a blank mystery, although, on learning that she had come recently from Chicago, the police formed a theory that she might have been a dangerous witness in some criminal case there.

After shooting the girl, the five men, who had sent the chauffeur on ahead in the car, abandoned the machine and fled into the woods. Three of them were captured within two hours by a Stratford posse of constables and citizens. They were found hiding in a thick undergrowth two miles from the scene of the tragedy and were completely exhausted from running through the forest. Their clothing had been torn to shreds by the brambles.

The men said they were Francesco Pizzichani, a restaurant keeper, and James Mattie, both of Bridgeport, and Herbert M. Booth of Stratford. The latter carried a 38-caliber revolver, which had several empty chambers.
All were taken to the Bridgeport jail.

Manager of Company Playing at The-

for Damages.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 23.—The council of administration of the University of Illinois dealt summarily with first offenders in Saturday night's disturbance brought before it.

J. K. Vallon of Anna, a sophomore, was permanently dismissed from the university for being a leader in the affray. V. H. Halperin of Chicago, a freshman from the R. T. Crane Manual Training school, was dismissed for one year, after which he will be permitted to return. This mitigation of his sentence was given because of his youth in the university. These dismissals are the first of a number to be made providing sufficient evidence can be secured.

Thomas Arkle Clark, dean of men, who was out of the city, has returned and began an investigation. F. J. Kelley, manager of the Musical Comedy company, which was holding the boards Saturday night, retained counsel and notified the city that he had started suits in his own behalf and for the members of his company injured.

Higher Rates in Body.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 23.—The insurgent faction of the Modern Woodmen of America scored a victory in their first attempt to prevent the putting into effect of a new and higher schedule of rates adopted by the head camp at Chicago January 1, when Judge Charles S. Bradshaw of the equity division of the district court handed down a decision, holding the proposed change to be null and void. The court further held that the amendments to the articles of the association are illegal because not adopted by a two-thirds vote.

Our customers have the same record of their accounts as we, and in the same handwriting. Our customers always know what they owe, their accounts cannot grow over night.

The McCaskey System protects you against error, it saves time and labor for us.

The Range
With a Reputation

The Economy

of A New Range

It is a mistaken idea of economy to try to get along—to attempt to get results with an old worn out range or cook stove merely to save the price of a new one. You can probably stick a knife blade anywhere in the seams of your worn out range where the bolts are loose and the stove putty has crumbled away and you're burning twice the fuel necessary.
You can save the price of a Great Majestic in the saving of fuel alone—and that would be good management and real economy. Don't trust to a printed description in buying a range, because a very glowing description can be given of a very ordinary range. If you are considering a new range, it will pay you, before investing your money in any range, to see and carefully compare, point for point, with any other—the

Great Majestic Malleable and
Charcoal Iron Range

A Perfect Baker—Fuel Saver—Outwears Three Ordinary Ranges
ONLY range made of malleable iron and charcoal iron. Charcoal iron won't rust like steel—malleable iron can't break. Put together with rivets—joints and seams absolutely air-tight always. Oven lined with guaranteed pure asbestos board, covered with an iron grate—you can see it—insuring a dependable baking heat with half the fuel required in ordinary ranges.

All Copper Movable Reservoir—Other Exclusive Features Reservoir is in direct contact with fire, heats through pocket stamped from one piece of copper—patented feature only in Majestic.
Oven Thermometer—open end ash pan—ventilated ash pit—ash cup.
